DIXON TRUST & SAVINGS BANK CLOSES DOORS

Ordered By Auditor To Permit Examination And Adjustment

The Dixon Trust & Savings Bank, which was organized about ten years ago with capital stock of $100,000 and surplus of $25,000, was closed Saturday night for examination and adjustment by Oscar Nelson, State Auditor of Public Accounts, the closing order being put into effect by State Bank Examiners R. M. Wylder and P. R. Ernest, both of Princeton.

The examiners would issue no statement concerning the condition of the bank this morning and indicated that no such statement would be forthcoming until the examination of the books had been completed. Neither was any statement made by any official or director of the institution.

It was indicated, however, by those in a position to know, that the deposits of the bank amount to about $300,000, consisting of savings, checking accounts and Christmas savings, while the last report of the bank made to the State Auditor the last of June showed assets totaling over $800,000.

Hope To Pay In Full
Therefore it is hoped the assets will be sufficient to pay the depositors in full, although considerable time may be required to realize upon some of the notes and securities, which consist to some extent of "frozen assets."

Among the assets are the three-story bank building at the southwest corner of Galena Ave. and First street, the first floor of which has been occupied by banking institutions for many years. The building is of stone and brick and was erected by W. A. Schuler, being ideally located in the business district of the city. The basement of the building is occupied by Bales & Wilhelm's barber shop, while the second floor houses dental and legal offices, all of which are occupied. The third floor is now being used for a meeting place for various organizations.

Concerning the Auditor's order to close the bank, the United Press brought the following information from The Telegraph from Springfield:

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—(UP)—The Dixon Trust & Savings Bank at Dixon, has been closed for adjustment. It was announced at the State Auditor's office here today.

The bank had assets totaling $612,291.19 as of June 29, this year, according to the Auditor's latest figures here.

The Auditor's office in making the announcement of the closing of the Dixon bank merely stated that the bank had been closed "for adjustment."

State bank examiners it was said, had been going over the bank's books since Saturday, but just what has been found is not known here.

It was only recently that W. J. Albright, cashier of the bank, was found dead in his garage, a victim of monoxide gas.

MOTHER DROWNS TWO CHILDREN THEN HERSELF

Ill-Health Believed To Have Prompted Act At Elizabeth

(Telegraph Special Service)
Rockford, Nov. 4.—Mrs. Henry Saam, aged 49, residing on a farm near Elizabeth, while evidently suffering from a fit of temporary insanity, tossed her seven months old son into a creek, running near the farm home, then returned to the house and taking her three year old daughter in her arms, jumped into a deep hole in the stream, all three being drowned. When her husband, a son and a daughter returned home at the noon hour from church services, they found a note on the kitchen table, in which Mrs. Saam told where the bodies could be found. On going to the creek the body of the infant was the first to be discovered and later the other two were found. An inquest was conducted last night on the verdict of the jury being in accordance with the facts. Mrs. Saam had been ill during the past few weeks, but apparently was recovering and appeared much better. It is believed that she was seized with a sudden attack of insanity and committed the act which cost her life and those of her two youngest children.

Charge Three U. of M. Students Are 'Leggers'

Ann Arbor, Mich., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The charge that three students were working their way through the University of Michigan by selling liquor to other students was made by police today after a raid Saturday night in which they asserted a case of wine and a case of whiskey were confiscated in a men's dormitory.

Harold McKee, 24, of Pittsburgh, is being held in the county jail and two others whose names were withheld are being sought. The liquor, police said, was brought from Canada and smuggled into the dormitory under buttoned overcoats. Sergeant Louis Pokey and Detective Clifford West declared that a number of telephone calls ordering liquor were received while they were raiding the room in the dormitory. The officers answered the calls.

The raid was part of a drive begun by local officers after five fraternities had been placed on probation by the University for tolerating intoxication at dances.

MISSING NAVAL OFFICER FOUND IN VAN COUVER

Voluntarily Returns To U. S. So He Can Be Legally Arrested

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—While the Navy was silent as to what steps may be taken against Lieutenant Harold W. Northcutt, who disappeared from the Norfolk Navy Yard and was taken into custody in Seattle, his family and friends here were puzzled today regarding the reasons which lay behind his disappearance and his journey across the continent. The young naval officer left the Norfolk Navy Yard in the night of October 22, to deliver the sum of $200 to the Extension Department of the University of Virginia. When he did not reappear a search was instituted which revealed that his automobile had been deserted in Richmond.

Agents of the Department of Justice were called in and located him in Vancouver. He voluntarily went to Seattle where yesterday he was formally placed under arrest and turned over to the Navy at the Bremerton Yard.

Objective of Woman.
His father-in-law, H. E. C. Bryant, a Washington newspaperman, expressed extreme surprise, saying he had a fine naval record, and was devoted to his wife and small son. At the same time, he disclosed that the Justice Department had been advised that a Canadian woman, whose name was not revealed, left her home in Ottawa last August for the purpose of winning the affections of Lieutenant Northcutt "at any cost."

Letters in the possession of the Justice Department show, he said, that "for more than a year she boldly asserted" her aims.

"Nothing ever surprised me and my family more," he said, "we know of no reason for such a step. Lieutenant Northcutt did not drink, was devoted to his wife and little boy, and did not owe any debt that he could not have paid."

So far as members of the family know, the only charge that the Navy can place against Northcutt is that of desertion.

Deny Report Queen Marie Is Estranged

Paris, Nov. 4.—(UP)—The reported split in the Roumanian royal family said to have been climaxed by the virtual rejection of Queen Marie from her suite in the royal palace, was officially denied by the Roumanian legation here today.

The legation statement denied that Marie and her daughter-in-law, Princess Helen, mother of the boy-king Michael, had been estranged or that Marie had broken with the government after her recent interview attacking Premier Julius Maniu over his refusal to grant her the place on the regency made vacant by the death of George Buzdugan.

"Nothing is more untrue," the statement said. "The Queen is on particularly good terms with the government and especially with Princess Helen, who came herself to wish a happy birthday to the Queen."

The legation also denied a report that Marie's courier had been assassinated, saying the story was a "fable."

Fifth Wife Is Near Death From Poison

Rockford, Ill., Nov. 4.—(UP)—Elly Adair, 20-year-old girl parachute jumper, was at the point of death today from poison taken after a quarrel with a former wife of her husband, Ray Barry, who she married Saturday.

"Remember I love you until death do us part" was the ironic note she left for her husband of a few hours. In a note to her mother, the bride wrote she "couldn't stand any more."

Barry, who also was the manager of her act, had been married five times before he met Miss Adair.

ROSENWALD LOSES

Washington, Nov. 4.—(UP)—Julius Rosenwald, the Chicago mail-order house multi-millionaire, today was denied a Supreme Court review of his $165,000 income tax refund suit, holding that rents and other income from property assigned to a charitable institution could not be taxed as income against him. Lower courts upheld imposition of the tax against him.

Rockford Woman Is Victim of "Vampire"

FREE CLINIC AT ELKS TOMORROW FOR CRIPPLES

Unfortunates Will Be Given Free Examinations Here

Dixon lodge, No. 779, B. P. O. Elks will be host to the physically handicapped children of Lee county at a free clinic to be held at the local lodge room on East Second street at Ottawa avenue in this city Tuesday afternoon beginning at 1:30.

The clinic will be conducted under the direction of Dr. Murphy, an eminent orthopedic specialist of Chicago, who will make no charge for his services and all crippled children will receive treatment without charge for the service. Dr. Murphy has requested that the regular family physician accompany the child to the clinic if it is conveniently possible and to make arrangements to that effect.

The success of the first clinic to be held in this section of the state under the crippled children program which is sponsored by the Elks lodge of the state, tomorrow, will have an important bearing upon the possibility of holding further meetings of this nature for the benefit of those unfortunates in Dixon. Officers and members of the local lodge have taken an active interest in the work and subscribed generously to a fund which is used solely for this purpose. Several applications have been received by those in charge of the program and it is hoped that a large number will take advantage of the free clinic and examination to be conducted tomorrow afternoon at the Elks club house.

THIS MONTH TO SEE WINDUP OF HARD ROAD WORK

State To Have Completed More Than 750 Miles In Year

Springfield, Ill., Nov. 4.—(UP)—Attempts for oil companies involved in the 104 suits attacking the 1929 state gasoline tax law in Sangamon county Circuit Court, conferred with Assistant Attorney General M. S. Winning here today relative to bringing one of the suits to an early trial with a view to making a test case.

The state's road building program for next year will total approximately 1,000 miles providing the present gas tax act is not declared invalid. It is revealed today. Hard roads will benefit by approximately $25,000 from gas taxes and with about $25,000 more from automobile license and oil inspection fees, about $45,000,000 will be available for road building purposes next year.

This month will see the windup of 1929 road building with just a little more than 750 miles completed.

There is just one hitch in the highway department's plan to build 1,000 miles of roads in 1930. Tax money tied up. It is the present gas tax. The 104 suits which have attacked the law in circuit court here have died up more than half the avenue already received. Other suits are expected to keep considerably more than this percentage of the total amount in litigation with the result that the matter may hang fire in the state courts for several years.

It was only recently that any money became available from the invalid 1927 gas law and that only represented one third of the total collected. Unless court action is speeded it is possible that the gas tax fund may not be available until 1932 and possibly 1933. Even though some of the funds were not involved in litigation their use would be prohibited until the law had been upheld either by the State Supreme Court or the United States Supreme Court.

The state spent more than $28,000,000 on roads last year. Of this close to nine million went for construction and about eighteen million for maintenance.

300 Dead Result Of Volcano's Eruption

Guatemala, City, Guatemala, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Santa Maria volcano continued in violent eruption today, spreading ashes and molten lava over a wide area.

Unofficial estimates estimated a death list of 300. Entire farms were destroyed and covered with lava. Villages near the volcano were threatened with destruction and the inhabitants fled.

Quezaltenango, near the volcano, was in turmoil, with terrified inhabitants fleeing the streets. Communication with the nearby small town of San Felipe was cut off. An eruption destroyed Quezaltenango in 1902, but it was rebuilt into Guatemala's second city.

ONE OF THREE JAIL BREAKERS IS CAPTURED

Trio of Convicts Cut Way Out Of Ohio State Prison

Columbus, Ohio, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Shot in the right leg, Arthur Brookner, life term prisoner from Findlay who with two others escaped from the state penitentiary early today after beating a guard, was captured in a building across from the prison shortly after 7 o'clock.

The other prisoners were Guy Tennent, sentenced from Cleveland to 25 years for burglary; and William Miller of Ironton, serving terms for robbery. All three were second-termers.

Warden Preston E. Thomas said the trio cut a hole through a concrete steel-reinforced roof over a cell block and crept about 75 feet down the wall where they surprised and beat A. R. Montgomery, on duty in a guard tower.

Montgomery said the prisoners shot him and a revolver. They dropped a rope over the wall and descended as another guard ran to Montgomery's aid.

The second guard emptied a gun at the fleeing trio and they returned the fire, but no one was hit.

The Warden said that the escaped men probably obtained their tools to cut through the cell block from the various jail shops. He said none of the 3,500 other prisoners attempted to join in the escape.

'MERCY KILLER' ACQUITTED BY FRENCH JURORS

Killed His Mother To End Her Terrible Suffering

Draguignan, France, Nov. 4.—(UP)—Richard Corbett, who shot his mother to death to end her sufferings from cancer, was found not guilty of murder charge today by a jury which deliberated only a brief time.

Corbett made a dramatic plea that the killing was justified on the ground of mercy, since his mother's case was hopeless and she was suffering agonies as she begged him to end it all.

MOTHER OF TWIN BABES HELD FOR AN EXAMINATION

Death of Twins, Sickness of Two Other Children Mystery

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Her three-year-old twin sons dead of poisoning and her two other children expected to die, Marie Reppy, 24, was being held for the coroner here today.

Her husband, Samuel, whom health authorities said was out of work, was not detained although he was questioned for several hours.

Dr. S. Winn, surgeon for the St. Louis coroner, early today reported to police that Delmar, one of the twins, died of a violent poison. He began an autopsy on the body of the other twin, Elmer.

According to the mother her children first became ill Wednesday while visiting Mr. and Mrs. Forest Dillow at Cuba, Mo. She declared Delmar became sick at 7 o'clock Saturday morning, and at 11 o'clock Elmer was effected, followed by Rosie, 4, at 3 P. M., and Clarence, 1, at 5 o'clock.

Officials Puzzled
Sunday morning, she said, Elmer was worse and Dr. W. G. Henderson of Cuba was called, but before he arrived the 1st died. His twin and the other children were rushed to City Hospital here where Delmar died.

Dr. Henderson had been told the children had eaten green walnuts or berries near the Dillow home. He telephoned Dr. G. G. Herzog, Crawford County, Mo., Health Commissioner, who agreed to an autopsy. Dr. Herzog said he was puzzled that the Dillow children were unknown.

Dr. Henderson and Sheriff O. L. Greyson of Crawford county today were to gather berries and walnuts to have a chemical analysis made. The Sheriff also decided to investigate the mother's report her children may have swallowed rat or roach poisoning in the Dillow home. He also indicated samples of pancakes eaten by both the Reppy and Dillow children yesterday morning might be analyzed.

Rum Runners' Feud Blamed For Murder

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(UP)—A feud between alcohol racketeers was blamed by police as the probable motive for the murder early today of Pete Marzadino, 32, a florist, whose body was found in his parked automobile, a bullet through the head.

Police said they learned relatives of the murdered man had been connected with illicit alcohol traffic.

Great men live longer than ordinary individuals, statistics show.

ARMED GUARDS TO BE MISSING IN CHICAGO POLL

Judicial Election To Be Quiet Affair Apparently

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—An election will be held in Chicago tomorrow without any of the usual precautions of armed guards and civilian watchers that have marked most of the balloting in recent years. Twenty-two judges are to be chosen and 11 bond issues and other propositions are to be voted upon.

For the first time in nine years voters at a judicial election will be given the chance of expressing a choice. Since 1920 the Democrats and Republicans have joined to nominate only as many candidates as there were places to be filled. This year there is a complete Democratic ticket, five Republican candidates, and 12 others running under the ballot heading "People's Ticket Against Coalition."

Three of the bond issues are of major interest as traffic measures. One calls for an extensive system of highway grade separations in Cook county; a second would authorize extension of the outer drive in Lincoln Park; and the third is for the proposed $20,000,000 superhighway, an elevated thoroughfare connecting the west side with downtown Chicago.

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The metropolis will elect a mayor and numerous lesser municipal officials tomorrow.

John F. Curry, Tammany leader, in charge of Mayor James L. Walker's campaign for re-election, claimed today that his candidate would win by a plurality of more than 500,000.

Fiorello H. La Guardia, running on a Fusion Republican ticket for mayor, predicted his election by 200,000. No figures were given out for Richard E. Enright, formerly Police Commissioner in a Tammany administration and mayoralty candidate of the Square Deal Party; or for Norman Thomas, Socialist candidate. A large vote for Thomas was predicted by political observers.

Lost Explorers Are Found in Arctic Zone

Winnipeg, Man., Nov. 4.—(UP)—The McAlpine party of eight explorers, geologists and airmen, lost since September 8 in the barren lands of northern Canada, has been found alive and safe on Victoria Island in the Arctic Ocean, according to a radio message today from the Hudson Bay steamer Fort St. James.

The brief message picked up by a radio operator at Churchill said: "McAlpine and party found. All well, located Cambridge Bay."

The St. James' brief message that the explorers were safe on the island in the Arctic Ocean brought to an end one of the greatest hunts ever staged in the far north.

Three days after McAlpine and his companions were swallowed up in the tremendous expanse of wilderness while in search of fabulous copper fields, the search for them began and at one time or another almost every well known Canadian aviator lent his aid.

BY ELMER WALZER

United Press Financial Editor.
New York, Nov. 4.—(UP)—The public came into the stock market whole heartedly today and, with thousands of small buying orders, offset the heavy selling of some of the big traders.

At the opening there was a decided slump. Blocks of from 1,000 to 50,000 shares were dumped upon the market and prices shot downward from 1 to 15 points. Prices melted away to such an extent that $5,000,000,000 in market values were erased in the first 30 minutes.

Then the small orders started flowing in. They had piled up in the week-end holiday. Little by little the prices moved back as the buying orders of the public—a public that stretched across the United States and into Europe—came into the market.

Steel rallied at once and other leaders followed. At the end of the first hour steel had made up all but about 2 points of its initial decline of 3 1/2 points and other shares improved proportionately.

The market held fairly steady a few points above the initial levels in the first two hours; but toward noon selling became more persistent; it represented further marginal liquidations and brought steel and other leaders down sharply.

Shortly after 12 o'clock Steel was back to around the opening price of 185 after having been carried above 190 earlier. General Electric was down to 234 1/2, off 13 1/2, from the opening and 16 1/2 from the previous close. American Telephone got down to 238 off 10 from the previous close.

Trading dropped off sharply from the heavy business last Wednesday, the last comparable session. At noon transactions amounted to 3,717,000, compared with 5,576,300 shares on Wednesday.

Influx of Orders

Brokers were at the offices early to sort out and group the influx of orders. Wires had worked 24 hours a day to bring in these orders on Friday and Saturday. They represented the attempt of the small traders to recoup their losses in many instances, or to pick up stock for investment or speculation.

A considerable number of the initial sales represented further forced liquidation. Over the holiday brokers had scrutinized their accounts carefully. On those close to the edge, margin calls were sent out.

The rebound was caused by the touching off of buying orders under the market. When these were exhausted the list steadied and went through narrower fluctuations. Tickers fell behind about 20 minutes in the first hour on the big board and the curb was trailing about equally.

Trading Heavy

Trading in the first half hour amounted to 2,038,000 shares, the third largest for that period in history.

At the end of the first hour, Steel had returned to above 190 from its opening of 185 and other leaders were proportionately higher. However, at that point there was considerable irregularity.

Call money renewed at six per cent, unchanged from Saturday. The market appeared to be in hand, according to observers. Further evidence of this came

Curb Review

New York, Nov. 4.—(AP)—After absorption of an early wave of profit taking at the opening, activity on the curb market slackened up considerably today and trading came near to normal proportions for the first time in more than a week.

The list was under considerable pressure, however. Losses of 2 to more than 10 points at the opening were substantially reduced during the morning, but renewed selling broke out in the early afternoon, notably in the utilities.

Cities Service was again dealt in huge volume opening with a block of 235,000 shares, the largest transaction on record, at 41½, up 4½, but it lost

FOUGHT BANDIT;
LATTER WOUNDED

Drunken Thug is Bested
In Daring Attempt
To Rob. I. A. C.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—For two seconds yesterday, Thomas Kelly, desk clerk at the Illinois Athletic Club, faced death, a repeating shot gun pressed against his heart and the steady finger of a drunken robber toying with the trigger.

A few minutes later the robber fled, perhaps mortally wounded, amid a fusillade of shots and into downtown Michigan Boulevard and tried to escape in a taxicab driven by an alleged accomplice. Both were arrested after a wild two mile chase.

Kelly was menaced when the robber, Thomas Gavin, insisted that he open the safe, the combination of which he did not know.

"I'll give you just two seconds to open it!" Gavin said, placing the muzzle of his weapon against Kelly's chest. "One!—Two!—"

That was as far as he got. Kelly seized the barrel. Together he and Gavin rolled on the lobby floor, each desperate for possession of the weapon. Suddenly Gavin looked up. He saw Edward Jensen, an elevator operator, with a revolver poised to fire, trying to get aim so he would not harm Kelly.

Gavin leaped up and fled. Five shots were fired at him. One struck him in the back. He jumped into a taxicab and sped away, closely pursued by George B. Thompson, a former Alderman, whose attention has attracted by the shots. Thompson picked up a policeman and chased the cab at a dizzy pace through the loop to the west side where the cab was fired to the curb.

Gavin and the driver, Edward Du Fresno, 45, were seized. Gavin was taken to the Bridewell Hospital, where doctors gave him little chance to live. Du Fresno was locked up.

Elmwood Park To
Be Given Probing

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—An investigation of liquor and gambling conditions in Elmwood Park, a northwest suburb, was started today by the State's Attorney's office, after the murder of Albert Erickson, saloon keeper.

Officers expressed an opinion at the Erickson inquest that the saloon keeper was killed because he changed bootleggers. Four men who machine gunned him to death yesterday pretended to have robbery as a motive when they entered the saloon. They took $17 from patrons, asked for the owner, who had slipped out to call police, shot Erickson when he re-entered, then contemptuously threw the money and the floor. They escaped.

Shanghai, Nov. 4.—(AP)—A Nationalist government communique issued today stated that Nationalist troops scored a decisive victory fifty miles west of Chengchow, Honan province, "capturing 20,000 soldiers of the Kuomintang (People's Army). As a result the Kuomintang forces are withdrawing to the west and the Nationalists are approaching Loyang."

TRIAL OF JUDGE
ENTERED FINAL
STAGES TODAY

State's Rebuttal Will
Commence: Arguments
Expected Soon

Weatherford, Tex., Nov. 4. (UP)—The trial of Judge R. H. Hamilton on charges of murdering his unwanted son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., entered its closing phase today as rebuttal to the defendant's completed case. It was expected final arguments would start tomorrow.

A crowded courtroom buzzed with discussion over various points brought out in the testimony and interest in the nature of the rebuttal was intense.

The state had contended: 1, that Walton was unarmed when he entered Judge Hamilton's office to tell of his clandestine marriage to the latter's daughter, Theresa; 2, that Hamilton bought shells for his revolver some days before the shooting; and 3, that the youth was shot in the back.

The defense was countered by introducing evidence to show: 1, that Hamilton believed Walton to be armed; 2, that the youth boasted of having been a Chicago gangster; and 3, that he had made threats against his father-in-law's life on various occasions.

Lower Socially

In view of these facts it was expected that rebuttal witnesses would be produced to testify that Walton was seeking a reconciliation with the judge, who was known to have objected to the marriage on the ground that the Waltons were on a lower social scale than the Hamiltons.

The difference in wealth between the two families has been clearly evident during the trial. The judge, his wife and Theresa have engaged a whole floor in a hotel here and commuted to Dallas over the weekend.

Mrs. Walton, mother of the slain Texas University youth, has one room in a cheaper hotel. She is simply dressed and has remained in the village during the trial.

Judge Hamilton's testimony on his own behalf Saturday was expected to strengthen his case materially. He read letters from his wife warning him that Walton had threatened his life and declared the youth had one hand in his coat pocket when he entered the judge's law office last May 4.

"I knew from the moment the boy grabbed his gun," Hamilton testified, "that one of us would be killed. I was the stronger of the two as results show. So he was killed."

SENATE VOTES TO CONDEMN FELLOW
MEMBER'S ACTION

Bingham Resolution Is Modified In Form In Which It Passed

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Senator Bingham of Connecticut, when asked today immediately after the Senate vote of censure, if he proposed to resign, replied "certainly not."

Bingham reiterated his protest because the Senate had not excused Charles L. Eyanston, of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, who assisted him in his work on the tariff bill, of corrupt motives.

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Senate today voted to condemn the conduct of Senator Hiram Bingham, Republican, Connecticut, for taking Charles L. Eyanston, an officer of the Connecticut Manufacturers Association, into secret sessions of the Senate Finance committee at the time the tariff bill was being framed.

It was the first act of censure in 27 years.

The vote was taken after a protracted discussion during which Bingham defended his action.

Bingham said his judgment in the way he used Eyanston, a tariff expert, might have been at fault but on the "other hand my motives in doing so were based on my whole hearted zeal for a protective tariff."

Resolution Modified.

Efforts by the Senator's friends to soften the language of the resolution of condemnation, which was offered by Senator Norris, Republican, Independent, of Nebraska, prevailed to some extent and as finally approved cleared Bingham of any intention of corrupt motives.

The vote was 54 to 22.

The resolution as adopted read: "That the action of the Senator from Connecticut, Mr. Bingham, in placing Mr. Charles L. Eyanston upon the official rolls of the Senate and in the manner set forth in the report of the subcommittee of the committee on the judiciary, while not a result of corrupt motives on the part of the Senator from Connecticut, is contrary to good morals and Senatorial ethics and tends to bring the Senate into dishonor and disrepute, and such conduct is hereby condemned."

The subcommittee of the judiciary committee referred to in the resolution is the lobby committee and gave details of the employment.

The late time the Senate had occasion to censure any of its membership occurred in 1902 when "Pitchfork Ben" Tillman and John McLaughlin, the two South Carolinians, engaged in a personal encounter on the floor.

Tillman accused McLaughlin of changing his vote on a treaty and McLaughlin came back with the reply: "I knew from the moment the boy grabbed his gun," Hamilton testified, "that one of us would be killed. I was the stronger of the two as results show. So he was killed."

THE NIGHTINGALE

ARK! how through many a melting note
She now prolongs her lays:
How sweetly down the void they float!
The breeze their magic path attends;
The stars shine out; the forest heeds;

New Chicago Civic Opera House Opens Grandly Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Grand opera, with the adjective in its fullest meaning, bows tonight from the stage of the world's newest and in many respects most magnificent homes of music drama—the Chicago Civic Opera House.
Even the glitter and glamor of the opening opera, "Aida," is not calculated to outsparkle the financial, engineering and architectural genius behind the $20,000,000 structure which Samuel Insull, president of the opera company, has called "the splendid gift of Chicagoans to Chicago and the world."
Vying with the Verdi score and challenging the splendor of the brilliant auditorium will be the sparkle of a new "diamond horse shoe" and the sheen of costly gowns as society participates in one of the smart events of the present season.
The total seating capacity is 3,000, including main floor, boxes and the two balconies.
Singing in "Aida" tonight will be Rosa Raisa in the name part, Charles Marshall, Cyrena Van Gordon, Caesar Formichi, Virgilio Lazari, Chase Barmon and Hilda Burke, the opera being under the baton of George Polacco, musical director of the company.
A portion of "Aida" is to be broadcast over a nationwide network, starting at 10 o'clock, Central time.

As the spooks met the guests and escorted them to seats, much merriment took place. Fred Craig in his usual jovial manner was at his best as the cars drove in. Mrs. Emma Lane and niece, Miss Marian Martin, had charge of the frolic indoors. No one was successful in guessing who the spooks were, and when the unmasking took place, all were much surprised.

FUR ODDS AND ENDS TRIM PARIS CLOTHES
Paris—(AP)—Dabs of fur in the form of bows, jabots, collars, belts and ties are coming in as trimmings on winter coats and dresses.

Little bows of ermine on black broadcloth coats are modish and detachable ermine scarfs, passed through slits in coat collars, and tied in a bow-knot in front, are decidedly new and popular.

COALITION GETS FREE HAND WITH NEW TARIFF BILL
Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Senate Democratic-Independent Republican coalition today was given a free hand with the tariff bill by administration leaders as a last hope of reaching a final vote on the measure without encroaching materially upon the time of the regular session, to convene four weeks hence.
Facing a task of admitted difficulty, coalition leaders were, nevertheless, confident that this objective would be attained and that the result of the new arrangement would be, in the words of Harrison of Mississippi, a Democrat, "a better bill" than that passed by the House and "a far better bill" than that recommended by the Senate Finance committee.
The leader of the administration group, which has been defeated repeatedly by the coalition, reached a decision to let the alliance have its way with the bill after many efforts to expedite action had failed, and President Hoover had called for enactment of the measure before the close of the special session. They are hopeful not only of obtaining an

Mrs. Emma Lane and niece, Miss Marian Martin, had charge of the frolic indoors. No one was successful in guessing who the spooks were, and when the unmasking took place, all were much surprised.

Paris—(AP)—Dabs of fur in the form of bows, jabots, collars, belts and ties are coming in as trimmings on winter coats and dresses.

Cites Service was again dealt in huge volume, opening with a block of 225,000 shares, the largest transaction on record, at 41½, up 4½ but it lost

FOUGHT BANDIT;
LATTER WOUNDED

Drunken Thug is Bested
In Daring Attempt
To Rob. I. A. C.

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—For two seconds yesterday, Thomas Kelly, desk clerk at the Illinois Athletic Club, faced death, a repeating shotgun pressed against his heart and the unsteady finger of a drunken robber toying with the trigger.

A few minutes later the robber fled, perhaps mortally wounded, amid a fusillade of shots and into downtown Michigan Boulevard and tried to escape in a taxicab driven by an alleged accomplice. Both were arrested after a wild two mile chase.

Kelly was menaced when the robber, Thomas Gavin, insisted that he open the safe, the combination of which he did not know.

"I'll give you just two seconds to open it," Gavin said, placing the muzzle of his weapon against Kelly's chest.

That was as far as he got. Kelly seized the barrel. Together he and Gavin rolled on the lobby floor, each desperate for possession of the weapon. Suddenly Gavin looked up. He saw Edward Jensen, an elevator operator, with a revolver poised to fire, trying to get him so he would not harm Kelly.

Gavin leaped up and fled. Five shots were fired at him. One struck him in the back. He jumped into a taxicab and sped away, closely pursued by George B. Thompson, a former Alderman, whose attention has attracted by the shots. Thompson picked up a policeman and chased the cab at a dizzy pace through the lobby to the west side where the cab was forced to the curb.

Gavin and the driver, Edward Du Fresno, 45, were seized. Gavin was taken to the Bridewell Hospital, where doctors gave him little chance to live. Du Fresno was locked up.

Elmwood Park To
Be Given Probing

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—An investigation of liquor and gambling conditions in Elmwood Park, a northwest suburb, was started today by the State's Attorney's office, after the murder of Albert Erickson, saloon keeper.

Officers expressed an opinion at the Erickson inquest that the saloon keeper was killed because he charged bootleggers. Four men who machine-gunned him to death yesterday pretended to have robbery as a motive when they entered the saloon. They took $17 from patrons, asked for the owner, who had slipped out to call police, shot Erickson when he re-entered, then contemptuously threw the money and the floor. They escaped.

Lower Socially
In view of these facts it was expected that rebuttal witnesses would be produced to testify that Walton was seeking a reconciliation with the judge, who was known to have objected to the marriage on the ground that the Waltons were on a lower social scale than the Hamiltons.

The difference in wealth between the two families has been clearly evident during the trial. The judge, his wife and Theresa have engaged a whole floor in a hotel here and commute to Dallas over the weekend. Mrs. Walton, mother of the slain Texas University youth, has one room in a cheaper hotel. She is simply dressed and has remained in the village during the trial.

Judge Hamilton's testimony on his own behalf Saturday was expected to strengthen his case materially. He read letters from his wife warning him that Walton had threatened his life and declared the youth had one hand in his coat pocket when he entered the judge's law office last May 4.

"I knew from the moment the boy grabbed his gun," Hamilton testified, "that one of us would be killed. I was the stronger of the two as results show. So he was killed."

TRIAL OF JUDGE
ENTERED FINAL
STAGES TODAY

State's Rebuttal Will
Commence: Arguments
Expected Soon

Weatherford, Tex., Nov. 4. (UP)—The trial of Judge R. H. Hamilton on charges of murdering his unwanted son-in-law, Tom Walton, Jr., entered its closing phase today as rebuttal to the defendant's completed case. It was expected final arguments would start tomorrow.

A crowded courtroom buzzed with discussion over various points brought out in the testimony and interest in the nature of the rebuttal was intense.

The state had contended: 1, that Walton was unarmed when he entered Judge Hamilton's office to tell of his clandestine marriage to the latter's daughter, Theresa; 2, that Hamilton bought shells for his revolver some days before the shooting; and 3, that the youth was shot in the back.

The defense was countered by introducing evidence to show: 1, that Hamilton believed Walton to be armed; 2, that the youth boasted of having been a Chicago gangster; and 3, that he had made threats against his father-in-law's life on various occasions.

Lower Socially
In view of these facts it was expected that rebuttal witnesses would be produced to testify that Walton was seeking a reconciliation with the judge, who was known to have objected to the marriage on the ground that the Waltons were on a lower social scale than the Hamiltons.

The difference in wealth between the two families has been clearly evident during the trial. THE NIGHTINGALE

ARK! how through many a melting note
She now prolongs her lay:
How sweetly down the void they float!
The breeze their magic path attends;
The stars shine out; the forest bends;
The wakeful heifers graze . . .

O sacred bird! let me at eve,
Thus wandering all alone,
Thy tender counsel receive,
Bear witness to thy pensive airs,
And pity nature's common cares,
Till I forget my own.

New Chicago Civic Opera House Opens Grandly Tonight

Chicago, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Grand opera, with the adjective in its full meaning, bows tonight from the stage of the world's newest and in many respects most magnificent homes of music drama—the Chicago Civic Opera House.

Even the glitter and glamor of the opening opera, "Aida," is not calculated to outsparkle the financial engineering and architectural genius behind the $23,000,000 structure which Samuel Insull, president of the opera company, has called "the splendid gift of Chicagoans to Chicago and the world."

Vying with the Verdi score and challenging the splendor of the brilliant auditorium will be the sparkle of a new "diamond horse shoe" and the sheen of costly gowns as society participates in one of the smart events of the present season.

The total seating capacity is 3,000, including main floor, boxes and the two balconies.

Singing in "Aida" tonight will be Rosa Raisa in the name part, Charles Marshall, Cyrene Van Goren, Cesare Formichi, Virgilio Lazari, Chase Baromeo and Hilda Burke, the opera being under the baton of George Polacco, musical director of the company.

A portion of "Aida" is to be broadcast over a nationwide network, starting at 10 o'clock, Central time.

Many charming pre-nuptial parties continue to be given in honor of Miss Margaret Knick, whose approaching marriage to Attorney Lloyd Scriven will take place this week.

On Saturday a delightful bridge luncheon was given at the home of Mrs. George Beier by Miss Zelda Swartz and Mrs. Beier. There were guests for three tables. The color scheme was pink and white, and the flowers were gorgeous pink and white chrysanthemums, with the wedding bell as the motif in decorating, in favors, talies, etc., an exceptionally dainty and charming effect resulting therefrom. After the beautifully appointed luncheon was served, all turned their attention to bridge for the afternoon.

Miss Katherine Wright was awarded the favor for high honors at bridge; Mrs. Aiana Harnish won the second favor and Mrs. Alexander Knick won the consolation favor. All present joined in presenting Miss Knick a lovely guest favor. Mrs. Clarence Good of Peoria; and Miss Palmer of Rockford were out of town guests.

As the invitations stated—"The fun began as they entered the door."

A reading by Mrs. Hubert Bahen, and a whistling solo by Mrs. Charles Rosbrook were very much enjoyed by all. Betty Jeanne Mossholder of Dixon sang a pretty little "Pumpkin" song.

As the spooks met the guests and escorted them to seats, much merriment took place. Fred Craig in his usual jovial manner was at his best as the cars drove in. Mrs. Emma Lane and niece, Miss Marian Martin, had charge of the frolic indoors. No one was successful in guessing who the spooks were and when the unmasking took place, all were much surprised.

After this the paper of the after-

FUR ODDS AND ENDS

Paris—(AP)—Dabs of fur in the form of bows, jabots, collars, belts and ties are coming in as trimmings on winter coats and dresses.

Collars of rabbit, alias ermine, adorn some of the black jersey cloth dresses for daytime wear. There are belts and cuffs of astrakhan or shaved lamb on some of the tweed dresses and coats.

Little bows of ermine on black broadcloth coats are modish and detachable ermine scarfs, passed through slits in coat collars, and tied in a bow-knot in front, are decidedly new and popular.

COALITION GETS FREE HAND WITH NEW TARIFF BILL

Regular Republicans' Capitulation May Bring Results

Washington, Nov. 4.—(AP)—The Senate's Democratic-Independent Republican coalition today was given a free hand with the tariff bill by administration leaders as a last hope of reaching a final vote on the measure without encroaching materially upon the time of the regular session, to convene four weeks hence.

Facing a task of admitted difficulty, coalition leaders were, nevertheless, confident that this objective would be attained and that the result of the new arrangement would be, in the words of Harrison of Mississippi, a Democrat, "a better bill" than that passed by the House and "a far better bill" than that recommended by the Senate Finance committee.

The leaders of the administration group, which has been defeated repeatedly by the coalition, reached a decision to let the alliance have its way with the bill after many efforts to expedite action had failed and President Hoover had called for enactment of the measure before the close of the special session. They are hopeful not only of obtaining an early result, but also that provisions which they might consider objectionable, may be eliminated in the necessary conferences with representatives of the House.

Body of Slain Man Finally Identified

Nashville, Ill., Nov. 4.—(AP)—The body of a man found shot to death in an automobile at a tourist camp near here last Monday has been identified from finger print records as that of Roy Winer, who had been arrested in Ohio, Wisconsin and Illinois on various occasions, the Department of Justice at Washington has advised Sheriff Petri. Authorities are still without clues to the identity of the killers or the motive for the slaying.

Mrs. Norma Hays of Mount Vernon, Ill., wrote Sheriff Petri that the description of the slain man fitted that of her former husband, named Wilson, who she said had been missing.

St. Louis Theaters Bombed: Blame Union

St. Louis, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Bombs exploded in two neighborhood motion picture theaters early Sunday, causing $10,000 damage to the LeMay Theater, and $5,000 damage to the Mackland Theater. Theater owners attributed the explosions to labor union difficulties.

ARTIFICIAL STARLIGHT.

A Berlin scientist has invented a means for making artificial starlight. The mystic glow of other worlds that blankets the earth on a cloudless summer night now can be made to shine in the corner of an unromantic laboratory.

This business of doing nature's work for her seems to be progressing beyond all reason; but perhaps a complex civilization makes it necessary. Many city dwellers never see the stars on account of the factory smoke. For such people artificial starlight is more or less a necessity.

For starlight, an insubstantial commodity in many ways, is one of those things which are essential to our well-being. The hard glare of the noonday sun is a light for realists. At night, when the sun is gone and the stars transmute familiar landscapes into enchanted glade and haunted fields, the world takes on a different aspect. The romancer can carry on his trade by starlight; and men who cannot live by bread alone cannot get along without romance.

This is especially true today. There was a time when the material facts of existence crowded so closely about men. By daytime the twentieth century civilization has many discouraging aspects. It is at night that we can see it in its proper perspective and judge it aright.

Not long ago a young man had occasion to visit Detroit, where he spent two days going through some of that city's vast automobile factories. The experience was acutely depressing. The endless lines of whirling machines, each tended by a man whose function it was to become as much like a machine himself as possible, stood out like an impressionistic sketch of the whole of modern life. It seemed as if all human endeavor were being reduced to the level of the automatic steel contrivances that chattered endlessly in the great factories. What hope was there the men who served monsters could ever realize their divine potentialities? None. The prophets of disillusion were right. Man was a machine.

But, late at night, when the young man boarded a steamer to continue his journey, things looked different. The ship swung away from its pier and dropped down the black tide of the Detroit river, and the stars came out. The shapes of the factories and warehouses on the bank grew indistinct. Detroit's skyline loomed hugely against the horizon; but it was no longer stark and forbidding. Under the stars its office buildings became soaring turrets and spires, and the glare of their incandescents was dimmed in the reflection of light from universes far across the black sky.

ROYALTY IN A DIAPER.

Little Princess Ilona of Austria, daughter of the Archduke Franz Joseph won first prize in a baby contest at Budapest.

We're really rather glad she won. Our story books always told us that princesses were somewhat finer than the rest of us, and could be recognized even if disguised as peasants; and lo! it seems that it is true. Clad only in a royal diaper, this wee princess was easily the best-looking baby in the place.

It always does us good to see the old legends upheld. We don't care much about kings, but a princess, to our way of thinking, is always a princess. Hooray!—or hoch!—for Ilona!

During a trial in a French court a man laughed so loudly that he was ejected. Maybe the French are copying our system of picking juries.

A ladies' wrestling club has been formed in London. You have to learn how to defend yourself when you go to a dance nowadays.

We no longer have Harry Houdini with us, but then there are the Congressional lobbyists.

One Massachusetts high school is said to have a football field but no class building. Well, they're starting the right way, anyhow.

One way to gain popularity is to be unlucky at cards—except when you're playing with partners.

A magazine writer says it isn't easy to tell a woman's age. Nor nice, either, if it happens to be just past 39.

Father's education is beginning all over again. Junior has home work.

The ladies sometimes have difficulty in making up their own minds, but find it easy to make up their husbands'.

Change sometimes helps us to a better view of life—if we get enough change and spend it wisely.

THE TINYMITES

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

The barn had landed on its side, and put a finish to the ride the Tinymites had had in air. Each one of them was glad. The wind that blew the barn so high had now died out and passed on by. 'Twas lucky that the ending of the whole thing wasn't sad.

The Tinymites, of course, were dazed and, at the same time, all amazed. They couldn't realize that they had landed safe and sound. "Am I asleep, or wide awake?" said Scouty. "Geel! For goodness sake, we once were in the air, but now we're right here on the ground."

"Let's look around the house and see if it is damaged much. Ah, me! I fear that we are always into trouble of some kind. The farmer man will be real sore when he can see his barn no more. I'll bet he's looking for it now. It's something he can't find."

"Oh, I don't know," another said. "If he will just walk straight ahead, he's bound to reach this funny place where we all dropped to earth. He'll likely want his barn to keep. Ha! When he sees it, will he weep? Well, we don't know, but our slight fall has far from hurt its worth."

Just then we Clowny shouted "Geel! Just look! Then hop behind a tree. I see the storming farmer now. He's found his barn alright. He'll shortly start an awful fuss, and likely blame it on to us. The wisest thing that we can do is disappear from sight."

The farmer came up to the scene. Oh my, oh my, but he looked mean. He had some horses with him that could pull a heap of weight. Around the barn he threw a rope. Then shouted, "This will work, I hope." The horses tugged away until the barn was pulled up straight.

ARMISTICE WITH AUSTRIA

On Nov. 4, 1918, the drastic terms of the armistice with Austria, signed on the field the previous day, were made public.

At the same time it was announced that the allied governments and the United States had come to complete agreement on the terms Germany must accept.

It soon became apparent that actual peace was near and on Nov. 8 German plenipotentiaries sent to receive the armistice terms from Marshal Foch arrived at allied general headquarters.

The terms were delivered to them with a formal demand that they be accepted or refused within 72 hours. The abdication of the Kaiser and the revolution in Germany occurred the day following receipt of the armistice terms.

Announcement of the signing of the armistice was made at 2:40 A. M. Nov. 11 at Washington by the secretary of state.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Everlasting Punishment" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 3.

The Golden Text was, "God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil" (Ecclesiastes 12:14).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Put on the whole armour of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God" (Ephesians 6:11, 17).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals must gravitate Godward, their affections and aims grow spiritual,—they must near the broader interpretations of being, and gain some proper sense of the infinite,—in order that sin and mortality may be put off" (p. 265).

Daily Health Talk

By J. Epstein, M. D.,
New York, N. Y.

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial Institute, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. Headquarters of the Institute are at 1331 G. Street, N. W., Washington, D. C.)

POOR APPETITE: Mothers frequently complain that their children do not eat enough. In the majority of cases this is only in the imagination of an over-anxious mother. Poor appetite in children may be due, however, to improper food, improper feeding, constipation, or an unhealthy mouth. A proper and regular diet will improve the appetite. A mild, pleasant laxative should be given when necessary.

VOMITING: Vomiting is usually the result of bad or forced feeding. Morning vomiting may be due to constipation, late suppers, or to chronic throat infection. In nervous children, excitement or an aversion for food may be the trouble.

CHRONIC CONSTIPATION: In the majority of cases, chronic constipation is the result of insufficient food, improper food or irregular habits.

COUGH: Cough in a child may be due to large tonsils and adenoids, bronchitis, asthma, chronic heart disease, whooping cough or tuberculosis. A persistent cough must not be neglected.

FATIGUE: When a child is easily tired and is unable to carry on the usual activities of childhood, he is suffering from lack of food, insufficient rest, anemia or some chronic ailment.

LOSS OF WEIGHT: This is an almost constant symptom of some chronic ailment. In some cases, it may be due to indigestion, constipation, improper food or improper feeding. A persistent loss in weight is suspicious of tuberculosis.

ANEMIA: This is usually due to malnutrition, unwholesome food, lack of air and sunshine. Chronic disease, loss of blood, or blood diseases, give rise to anemia.

SLEEPLESSNESS: When a child is restless or sleepless at night, he may be suffering from large tonsils and adenoids, too little or too much food, late suppers, nervous disorders, excitement, or pin-worm.

FEVER: A rise in temperature is the first evidence of some abnormal function of the body. Fever is a general index to some infection or intoxication. During childhood, a persistent daily rise in temperature may mean heart disease, tuberculosis, or rheumatism.

Do not wait until the child is really sick to consult the family doctor. Have him looked over at least once a year. Get the prevention in ahead of the trouble and avoid the necessity of cures. Fresh air and sunshine, proper feeding, cleanliness and good habits, and a family doctor who is a close friend and not a stranger held at long distance for emergencies, will prevent most ailments in infants and children.

POET'S CORNER

Gorgeous hues light up the woodland scene,

But the grass and flowers lie dead together.

O'er the mounds that Summer saw so green.

Early taken, still the perfume lingers

Wafted from the crushed and fallen leaves;

Later, Autumn's consecrating fingers

Take our treasures; last, the urn receives.

I see the leaves are a-falling—

Falling, the red and yellow leaf;

And I know they are a-calling—

Calling with the voice of grief.

They tell me they are going

On the season's fleeting car;

But I see them only showing

How life's season's fleets afar.

I will not hear their voices;

Youth's spring—I cannot let it go.

Every flower and leaf rejoices—

Wintry age cannot be so.

I'll take the brooklet, singing

Endless sonnets, for my friend;

Be not always, dear one, bring

Signals, leaf-like, of youth's end.

Hear him shouting gayly, "Never!"

As he whirls the miller's wheel;

Then goes dancing seaward ever,

Laughing at the woes we feel.

But the ice shall come and cover

Up this rogue, and hide his might;

And you'll see this summer lover

Stiffen in the winter night.

Rustle, then and laugh, ye branches,

Fling your leaves, and tell me so:

Pour them down in avalanches—

Lead the autumn winds that blow.

Youth must vanish, that is certain;

But I trample on your signs;

Looking through this leafy curtain,

Read a bud-life's mystic lines.

Yes, I see the leaves are falling—

Falling, the red and yellow leaf;

And I know that they are calling;

But their voice no more is grief.

MANY men have sought words to describe that "extra something" in Chesterfield.

It is there, undoubtedly... a "sparkle" of spicier aroma, an extra touch of flavor, a certain added "character," unmistakably Chesterfield's own.

No one word describes it—but only the most inexperienced smoker could fail to mark it. Between other cigarettes and Chesterfield, there is the clear-cut difference between just something to smoke and the cigarette that puts—

DIXON HIGH WAS BEATEN BY LONE SCORE SATURDAY

Local Boys Didn't Play Their Usual Game in Savanna Contest

The Dixon high school football team were humiliated at Savanna Saturday afternoon by having their opponents cross their line early in the second quarter and scoring the only touchdown of the afternoon and then adding another point on a sprint off right tackle, which gave Savanna a victory by a score of 7 to 0. The purple and white squad played a ragged game which they should have won, but the Dixon line did not hold when Savanna held the ball and when the locals carried the ball the interference was poor and they were unable to gain.

Savanna won the toss and chose to receive. Dixon kicked off against a stiff wind and Savanna took the ball on their 35 yard line and with a rapid succession of straight line plays carried it to the center of the field. On an attempted end run, Dixon broke through and carried their opponents for a ten yard loss but on the next play Savanna gained back nine of these and were held, and punted.

McReynolds and Teeter on two plays made five yards and on a punt formation, McReynolds hit the center of the line for a six yard advance which made it first down for Dixon. Teeter who played a plunging game during the entire afternoon circled the right end for a nine yard advance and on the fourth down Dixon punted to Savanna's 16 yard line, the ball being returned only two yards when the carrier was downed. Savanna renewed their line smashing tactics and were advancing toward the center of the field as the quarter closed.

Second Quarter
Collins was sent into the line to take Smith's place at left tackle for Dixon. Savanna renewed their line attack and with straight football, Frosh and Casselberry doing the heavy work in plowing through the Dixon line. Casselberry carried the ball off right tackle for the extra point and the score stood 7 to 0 in Savanna's favor.

Savanna kicked to Dixon's 45 yard line but the purple and white after repeated attempts found that they could not gain through the opposing line and Teeter punted to Savanna's own yard line. Savanna punting against a strong wind sent the oval to their own 12 yard line and here was Dixon's chance to show their reading ability. McReynolds, who was being watched closely, made four yards off left tackle and Teeter went around right end, carefully picking his holes to the opponents four yard line. Here Dixon suffered a five yard penalty for off side. One yard was gained on the next play and on the fourth down a forward pass was attempted which went wild and Savanna took possession of the ball. A five yard penalty was inflicted upon Savanna for off side and the Dixon line strengthened momentarily at this point and held forcing the opposition to punt again. The ball went high and out of bounds on Savanna's 22 yard line, giving Dixon another opportunity to score. Wolford was sent in to relieve Daniels. On the fourth down Dixon tried another forward pass back of the goal line which Savanna intercepted and carried out eleven yards as the half ended.

Third Quarter.
McReynolds kicked off for Dixon, the wind being in his favor and the ball went back of Savanna's goal line being brought back into play on the 20 yard line. Savanna opened up a telling attack on the Dixon line and worked the ball down to the center of the field when they suffered a five yard penalty for off side. Wolford was sent into the backfield to replace Daniels, whose injured shoulder was slowing him up. Dixon's line strengthened and Savanna was penalized another five yards for delay in signals and punted out of bounds on Dixon's 40 yard line. Teeter made four yards around right end and then Dixon was penalized five yards for off side and punted to Savanna's 20 yard line, the ball being carried back five yards before downed. Four more yards were made around left end and Savanna was penalized five yards for off side and punted to Dixon's 34 yard line. McReynolds tried to get around left end but was halted and Teeter then hit the middle of the Savanna line for a nine yard gain. Wolford adding two more through center to their own 43 yard line as the period closed.

Fourth Quarter
Savanna kicked off to Dixon and the purple and white introduced an effective criss cross style of football. Teeter making five yards around right end on the first trial. McReynolds added another yard off right tackle and then hit center for three more and on the fourth down punted to Savanna's 13 yard line. Savanna tore off 12 yards on the right side of the Dixon line, then added ten more off the left side. Frosh and Casselberry carrying the ball. With the ball on their own 49 yard line on the march down the field, Savanna was penalized 15 yards for holding and punted to Dixon's 40 yard line. Teeter returning it eight yards before being downed. Wolford and Teeter carried the ball on a criss cross which netted a five yard advance around the right end.

One of the most remarkable action pictures from a football game during the present season was taken by Fred Bottomer, photographer for NEA Service during the course of the recent Notre Dame-Carnegie Tech game. It shows Joe Savoldi, left, Notre Dame back, running with the ball around Carnegie's end for 20 yards. A skibo tuckler had just leaped for Savoldi and a Notre Dame player had thrown himself at his feet, upsetting him, as the shot was made. From the spot where the picture was taken, Savoldi continued down the field for 15 yards.

McReynolds failed to gain and Wolford hit center ineffectively. Dixon lined up to punt and Savanna was penalized 10 yards for roughing the kicker as the contest subsided.

IN BIG TEN
Chicago, Nov. 4. (AP)—Owing to a vote of thanks to Northwestern's Wildcats, Minnesota and Purdue today had almost distanced the pack in the quest for the Western Conference football championship.

Northwestern's contribution to the striving Gophers and Bollermakers, was 7 to 0 victory over Illinois Saturday, which tossed the Illini out of the race after a two years reign over the Big Ten. Purdue remained at the top of the list by scoring a 13 to 0 triumph over Wisconsin's bare defense, for its third straight triumph, while Minnesota added its second straight win, a 19 to 7 decision over Indiana.

Saturday's program will strike the high spot of the season in choice offerings, with three intersectional games, and one contest of foremost importance in connection with the championship affairs. In the title battle Minnesota will tackle Iowa at Iowa City, in what is regarded as the rampant Gophers' toughest test of the schedule. Invasions of Illinois and Michigan by Army and Harvard, respectively, head the intersectional engagements, with Purdue entertaining a visitor from the south, Mississippi.

Harvard will be making its first appearance in its football history at Ann Arbor Saturday, although the teams have met at Cambridge of four other occasions, with the Crimson victorious each time. The Army game will provide a chance for Illinois to seek a victory that would replace its loss of championship honors.

In the other games Northwestern will tackle Ohio at Columbus, and Wisconsin will meet Chicago at Chicago, Indiana will be idle.

Ohio still is undefeated in Big Ten competition, but its 18-2 defeat by Pittsburgh Saturday indicates the Buckeyes can hardly hope to escape a beating, with Northwestern and Illinois remaining on their schedule.

Northwestern fashioned itself an outside chance of grabbing a share in the title, by defeating Illinois, but its hopes rest on Purdue and Minnesota defeats.

Chicago's season may be regarded as a successful one, if the Maroons fail to win another game. The triumph over Princeton was more than a Chicago victory to Coach Amos Alonzo Stagg. Teaching football for the 38th year, Stagg saw a Maroon eleven, directed by his son, Paul, come from behind and turn out a decisive 15 to 7 victory over the Tigers.

Georgia Tech, Illinois and Southern California, all top-ranking in 1928, have been tumbled to defeat in the general melee while such sectional holders as Nebraska in Big Six and Texas in the southwest are barely hanging on in the title hunt.

On the basis of the latest performances, the most powerful arrays are Pittsburgh and Yale in the east; Notre Dame, Purdue and Minnesota in the middle west; Tennessee, Kentucky, Vanderbilt and Tulane in the Southern Conference group; Utah in the Rocky Mountain area; and California's surprising Golden Bears on the Pacific Coast. In the other main sectors, Texas christian holds at least a temporary edge in the race for Southwestern Conference honors, while Oklahoma bars Nebraska's path to the Big Six top.

THE CALL OF THE OUTDOORS

CONSERVATION OF QUAIL

A land owning sportsman living in the eastern section of the country has a good and perhaps novel plan for keeping up a fair supply of quail on his property. The mowing machine, as is quite well known, is a rather destructive implement to the nests of birds residing on the ground. With that fact in mind this conservationist practices the following method of saving the quail nesting on his land.

During the incubating season he takes his setter dog to the fields which are to be reaped, and by the dog's points discovers the nests of the birds. Near every nest he drives a stake. So at mowing time he leaves the quail undisturbed, with the grass or grain still waving over her pretty head while the dear maternal heart throbs in glad expectation of the first "peep" of a prison freed birdie, and no doubt, with a hearty "thank you" for the kind consideration by the man so merciful—pro tem.

Disturbing the nests of quail certainly acts against their propagation and any farmer, sportsman or youngster that helps protect the nests during hatching season is doing a world of good towards helping to bring back the wonderful, well stocked game fields that pioneers only knew.

Not so long ago a certain Alabama farmer destroyed eighteen quail nests one afternoon with his mower. Think of the great number of birds killed by his carelessness.

The Izaak Walton League of America, whose members are represented in every state of the Union, fosters good sportsmanship and needless destruction of America's natural resources. The example portrayed in this article comes from the heart of a true Waltonian. Conservation of game birds came foremost, and we believe his farm remains a happier home with the cheerful call of the quail each day. What a blessing it would be to find more thoughtful men, such as he, that earn their living from tilling God's soil.

Army and Dartmouth on successive Saturdays.

The Bollermakers of Purdue, with one of the hardest hitting backfields in the country, stepped into the national picture as well as the Big Ten lead by trimming Wisconsin for their fifth straight victory. Minnesota also has a clean slate, with Indiana as the latest victim, but the two remaining contenders for Western Conference honors, held for the past two years by Illinois, do not meet this season. Minnesota tackles Iowa this week while Purdue has an easy intersectional assignment with Mississippi.

This week's program is featured by two of the most colorful east-west engagements of the year, with Army invading the stronghold of Illinois, and Harvard journeying to Michigan, both defeats have altered their early promise of significance. Nevertheless there will be a battle when Red Cagle's mates thread the gridiron made famous by the Galloping Ghost, Red Grange.

Notre Dame, after five straight victories, expects to have no comparatively difficultly in disposing of Drake. If so the Hoosiers will stake their national championship bid in the game with Southern California at Chicago, Nov. 16.

DIXON, GENESEO PLAY SCORELESS AND ROUGH GAME

Several Of Ads Injured In Game Here Sunday Afternoon

In a game in which rough playing was as much a feature as football, the Dixon Ads held the Geneseo Independents to a scoreless tie at the Airport field before a good sized crowd Sunday afternoon. Shale who had gone into the backfield to relieve an injured Dixon player suffered injuries at the opening of the final period which resulted in his being rushed to the Dixon public hospital. It was feared that he had sustained a fracture of the collar bone on the right side. Shale was tackling a Geneseo who was carrying the ball near the side line and in so doing was thrown against the front of an automobile. Very few of the locals came out of the scoreless combat without injuries and discolored optics appeared to be the most popular.

The Ads demonstrated a marked improvement in their game, the line functioning much better than of late and the forward passing was very effective as a ground game. The passes were short but effective. The interference when Dixon carried the ball could have been improved upon materially and lack of this resulted in Dixon's being unable to advance when they were in their opponent's territory.

Outplayed Opponents
In the first quarter the Ads outplayed their opponents. The Geneseos were penalized twice for off side in the first few minutes of play and Dixon completed two well executed forward passes for short gains.

Geneseo came back strong in the second quarter and opened an assault upon the heavy line of the Ads, working the ball down to Dixon's 20 yard line only to lose their best chance of the afternoon to score on a fumble. Dixon began to encounter difficulty in effecting an entrance through the opposing line and resorted to passing. Geneseo intercepting the first attempt on Dixon's 25 yard line, renewing their line smashing tactics they made eight yards and drew a five yard penalty for off side. Wedlake was taken out of the game, the first casualty, he having sustained a deep gash across the bridge of the nose. Nagle taking his place and finishing the game in the role of the chief gainer for the Ads.

The Independents renewed their line smashing tactics in the third quarter after Dixon had kicked off and downed the carrier of the ball on his own two yard line. Geneseo made 19 yards in quick succession and punted. The entire third quarter was played within 30 yards of the Geneseo goal line. In the final period Dixon made a valiant attempt to score and several substitutes were sent in to replace injured men, but the final whistle sounded without a score for either side.

plays a lone hand, so to speak.

A National league man remarked recently to me:

"Why the Americans have what amounts to a world's series board of strategy. Their best minds get together to help the club that is in the series. It is a matter of league pride to leave nothing undone to aid the contending club."

"Unfortunately, we have no such situation. Nor is the spirit such that it apparently would be welcomed. The manager of a recent National league contender made some mistakes in playing against the Yankees, was offered some advice from John McGraw and Rogers Hornsby, two men qualified to speak on the subject. The offer was abruptly rejected and the club lost four straight."

"In advance of another world's series, the manager of a National league club permitted his by-line to appear over a story in which he pre-announced a discouraging effect. No American league manager would have shown such questionable loyalty."

"Take the matter of propaganda," our National league observer went on "A year ago, we heard a lot about the Yankee 'cripples' before the series with St. Louis. The idea got around that all the Cardinals needed to do was to go out on the field and push Babe Ruth and the rest of them over. The Cards themselves fell for it and you know what happened."

Twin Ends of Utah Aggies Present Problem to Foes

If you've seen any arguments among opponents of the Utah Aggies football team this fall, chances are they were over the identity of the Aggies varsity wingmen. league psychology when Connie Mack declined an invitation for the Athletics to practice on Wrigley Field before the series started. It was as much as to say 'We don't need to do it.'

There is nothing like a good, hearty victory to check the strident war whoops for a football coach's scalp. Since Cornell wiped up Princeton for the first time in over a score of years the squawks over the regime of Gil Dobie in the picturesque domain above Cayuga's waters have dwindled to the faintest kind of a whisper.

There need be no rush to compare the Big Red product of 1929 with the smashing machines of the Kaw-Penn era. Columbia, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania loom ahead to furnish additional tests, but apparently Cornell is about ready to emerge from its long slump, while also ranking among the few major colleges included in the Carnegie report's "purists."

A few good, hard-running half-backs make a lot of difference in the life and tenure of any coach.

BROADCAST KING GEORGE'S DEATH; REPORT IS HOAX

King and Queen are Being
Cheered As False
Report Spreads

Paris, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Word that King George of England had died was broadcast by a Paris radio station last night and not corrected until ten minutes later when its information was found to have been a hoax.

The radio station received a phone call purporting to be from a widely known French news agency which sometimes supplies it with news. The speaker, after "identifying" himself, conveyed the false information that King George had just died.

The information was put on the ether at once, one of the editors of the news agency being among the listeners. He called his organization and asked details, only of course to receive a blanket denial that any such report had been put out. On the contrary, it was noted, latest reports as to the King's health were highly optimistic.

Both the radio station and the news agency instituted an investigation, but ran up against a blank wall when the telephone company was unable to trace the call. They are anxious to prosecute the malefactor.

There have been several such hoaxes recently but all hitherto have failed when a careful check was made of the information conveyed.

KING GEORGE CHEERED
London, Nov. 4.—(AP)—Cheering crowds welcomed King George back to London for Sandringham this afternoon.

The King and Queen drove from the railway terminal to Buckingham Palace in the royal motor car their little granddaughter, Princess Elizabeth, seated between them and holding the Queen's hand tightly.

Their Majesties repeatedly bowed and smiled in response to the throng's hearty greeting. There was a particularly warm demonstration outside the palace where a crowd of more than 3,000 acclaimed their arrival.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

HOW I CAME TO BE A PREACHER

To The Dixon Telegraph, and its Youthful Readers:—

Recently, I have addressed the English League, of the Y. M. C. A., in Berlin, on the subject: "The Religious Denominations, or Sects in America." They say, that Germany is cursed by having so many political parties, and they think that a similar vexation must exist in America, because of so many divisions in Protestantism. This may be true in the smaller town and villages, but in the large cities, where there is such a multitude of unchurched people, these divisions stimulate, and emulate one another, in gathering in the strangers, and strengthening their organizations; much more so, than if there were only one or two denominations, as rivals in the place. Strangers do not reside many weeks in the neighborhood of these churches, till several pastors, and deaconesses, call upon them, and urge them to join their church. In Germany you can live in the same town for seven years, within a block of a magnificent state church, and no one will ever bother you about joining any church. Their membership is recruited through the confirmation classes, and with a membership in many of the churches, of twelve to twenty thousand, they do not stand in need of many strangers and interlopers.

The young men have requested me to speak next Monday evening, on the subject, "How I Came to Be a Preacher?" This is rather a searching question, and I hope the readers of the Telegraph will pardon me for calling their attention to some personal experiences in my boyhood life. The fact is, the older we get, the more apt we are to talk about our youthful pranks.

My birthplace was in a log house, on the banks of Fishing Creek in Clinton county, Pennsylvania. When I was a year and a half old, my mother wrapped me in a blanket, and seated me on the dining room table, while she was scrubbing the floor in an adjoining room. By some means I got hold of a butcher-knife and cut quite a nick in the end of the table. This was the first mark I made in the world. I was too young to remember it, but my attention was frequently called to it as a mark of my destructive temper.

A few years later, my sister and I visited our new home which had just been freshly plastered. I had in my hand a whip with a long lash to it, and I soon discovered what nice curves I could make in the freshly plastered ceiling. This was the second mark I made in the world, and it was often pointed to, as an additional evidence of my mischievous temperament. One time, I remember, mother took me to the garret, where she knelt in prayer. She always prayed in German. She asked me to kneel by her side. I did not understand much of the prayer but I knew she mentioned my name. Within easy reach there stood several bags of dried peaches and I was reminded that I had, several times, helped myself to those peaches when we had no other fruit to eat. It occurred to me that she might be talking to the Lord about that. She never mentioned anything to me about it, but I well knew, that she preferred me to wait, until they were stewed and prepared for the table, before I should help myself to the peaches.

On another occasion, father and mother went to church, and left my two sisters and myself at home. Father had just bought a new family clock, and before leaving he warned us not to touch the clock. The more I thought of it, the more eager I became to examine its wonderful mechanism.

My sisters warned me, but I got on a chair and by some accident I touched the pendulum. It stopped and the ticking stopped. Thinking I had injured the clock, I was greatly troubled. I watched for father's return and as soon as I saw the buggy coming over the hill, I ran to meet it, and I cried out "Father, I didn't touch the clock!" This did more to arouse suspicion, than to allay it.

Father said, to mother, I guess he did touch the clock after all. As soon as he entered the house, he saw that the clock was not going. Of course the boy has been meddling with it. Then he moved the pendulum, and it went on ticking as before. Then there was peace and nothing more was said. But after I got into bed, I realized that I had told a lie, I tossed about and could not sleep. At last I got up and went to the bedside of father and mother, and told them, "I did touch the clock." They said, "The clock is all right, we forgive you, and the Lord will forgive you too, if you will ask him. Go back to bed."

Our church, Lutheran and reformed, was five miles away. In going there, we passed a United Brethren Church, a mile farther on we passed a Methodist church, two miles farther, we crossed the county line, into Center County, and passed a Disciple Church, before we reached our plain church edifice. It was a square frame structure, with a gallery on three sides, pigeon-nest pulpit in front, and a narrow winding stairway for the preacher to climb up on. The elderly people filled the down-stairs and the Elders and Deacons, sat in the Amen-Corner. The younger people occupied the up-stairs. The front seats around the gallery, was occupied by the members of the choir, of which my Uncle

Alleged Kidnapers Jailed After $25,000 Ransom is Paid for Boy

Benjamin was the leading bass singer, and my Aunt Elvina, was the leading soprano.

It was here, that I caught the idea, that the preacher must be a man of some importance. Here were four or five hundred people, listening intently to every word the preacher was saying. I did not get much out of the sermon in those early days, and when the service lasted over two hours, I sometimes took a nap, and was greatly embarrassed, when a neighbor punched me in the back, to get up for the closing prayer.

Our home was the half-way house between the two Congregations. So it suited the preacher, now and then, to stop with us for dinner. At such times, mother would say to me, "Thomas, you must go at once, and kill a rooster, for the Preacher will be with us for dinner." I never hesitated to obey that order, because I liked chicken myself. No matter how busy, father would let the plough stand in the field, to spend hours in conversation with the Preacher. I never saw him to do that for anybody else. He always insisted, that the Pastor must occupy the place of honor at the dinner-table, which meant, the surrender of his own seat, at the head of the family.

Such respect, and reverence, shown on the part of my parents, necessarily gave me an exalted opinion of the Ministry of the Gospel. I felt sure mother would be glad, if I should choose that calling. To me, it seemed a long-hard-road to prepare for that profession. The old saying, that "more chickens entered the ministry than any other profession," did not impress me much. I knew, father wanted me to be a farmer, and a farmer had access to chicken whenever he wanted it, without consulting the ministry.

About this time, I was sent to the church, for instruction in Luther's Catechism. There was a class of thirty young people, of which I was the youngest, about thirteen years of age. Our pastor at that time, was Dr. Ziegler, who, soon after, became Professor of Theology, in the Missionary Institute, which is now known, as the Susquehanna University. He was very thorough, and conscientious, in giving his instructions. It seemed to me, he had some doubts, before Confirmation, we were to attend instruction every day. One day, the Pastor asked me to take a walk with him. He took me to the home of a near neighbor for dinner. On the way, he asked some serious question, which I answered as best I could. I had no startling story to tell about my conversion, but since I had attended his instructions, my interest in Prayer and Religion, Services, had considerably increased. This seemed to satisfy him, so that I passed from under the ban. So far as I know, I am the only one, yet living, who belonged to that class.

By teaching school in my teens, I saved money enough to purchase a buggy, which, I thought, would give me pleasure in taking the girls out riding. This new purchase, absolutely my own, puffed me up considerably. But to my utter discomfiture, the first time I ventured upon one of these proposed joy-rides, I was overtaken by a terrible misfortune. My horse was hitched to a post in front of a neighbor's house, on the banks of Fishing Creek.

While I was sitting in the parlor, and the handsome red-haired young lady was getting ready for the proposed moon-light excursion, my horse broke loose, ran through the timber, down a steep bank into the creek.

When we got to the place, the horse was standing in the water up to his shoulders, with his head to the wrecked conveyance. The lines and the bit, in his mouth, prevented his escape. The buggy was a complete wreck. All the wheels were crushed to the hubs, the top and cushioned seats, were torn into shreds. The savings of two years of self-denial, lay in ruins, in the bottom of the creek. As I entered my bed-chamber that night, I seemed to see myself, standing at the cross-roads of life. There was the wide gate, and the broad road, on which the multi-tude seemed happy. There was music and dancing, and a great variety of stage performances, and moving picture shows, to entertain and amuse the crowd, but at the end of that way, I saw a black smoke arising, which I was informed, was "the smoke of their torment ascending forever and ever." I made up my mind I would keep to the straight and narrow road, on which fewer people were traveling. In places, it was steep, and hard to climb, but by the help of the Almighty, I proposed to persevere to the end, where there is peace and joy forever more.

About this time, the civil war broke out. I made up my mind to enlist as a soldier. I resigned my school in Mill Hall, Pennsylvania. Father and mother, tried to persuade me, not to go, at least not yet. I called on my grandfather, Captain John Dornblaser, who commended a company, against the British, in the war of 1812. When I asked him, what I should do, his answer was, without hesitation, "If I were as healthy and vigorous as you are, I would enlist as a soldier in the Union Army." That settled it with me. I told my parents, what grandfather said. Then they consented, that I might join a Cavalry Company, commanded by my uncle, Captain Israel B. Schneider, which was connected, during the four years of blood and fire, with the Seventh Pa. Vet. Col, Cavalry in the Army of the Cumberland under the command of General Rosecrans, Thomas, and Sherman.

Some people think, that the career of a soldier, is a life of dissipation, wrecklessness, godlessness, and crime. It did not so appear to me. We were facing death almost every day. And men are never so serious as in the presence of death. Some men never seem to have a real serious thought, till they lie on their dying-bed. The soldier is not in bed, but he is facing death at his post of duty every minute. You will not blame me for feeling serious, after I was wounded, and saw a dozen of my comrades shot dead at my side. After the awful slaughter on the first days battle at Stone River, I withdrew into the bushes, a few minutes, and I made a solemn promise to the God of battles, that, if he would spare my life to see the end of the war, I would serve Him as a Missionary, at home, or in India, or Africa.

On the bloody Lord's Day, at the battle of Chickamauga, I renewed that solemn promise. When I returned home after the war, a committee of politicians wanted my consent, to run as a candidate for the legislature. Had I consented, it might have changed my whole career. I remembered my promise, and my reply was, "gentlemen, I am not fit for that office, and besides, I have made up my mind to go to college." Where shall the means come from? The monthly wages I sent to father, he loaned out on interest, which amounted to $1200.00, and the balance needed, to complete my seven years in college and seminary, my father supplied from his hard-earnings. I am not sorry that I chose the Ministry. As a farmer, I might have more of this world's goods to my credit, but in many other respects, I feel that I have been the gainer.

I am sorry to hear of Father Foley's death. He was a kind friend to my two soldier boys.

Sincerely and Affectionately,
Thomas Franklin Dornblaser.

Now they "harvest" salt instead of mining it. These pictures show the first "crop" of the 1500-acre, $7,000,000 salt farm at Alviso, Calif., near San Francisco, being harvested. Each acre produced from three to five inches of salt, an inch yielding approximately 100 tons. Above is a general view of the salt farm; below, one of the huge harvesting machines pouring salt on a conveyor belt.

IN 25 YEARS NO SUCH REMEDY AS GLY-CAS FOR HER

Stomach Troubles Ended, Terrible Knots of Rheumatism Gone from Her Limbs Now.

"I'm telling the truth when I say the first medicine to ever actually reach my case is this Gly-Cas," declares Mrs. Susan Strong, 1329 Grove St., Middletown, Ohio, of this amazing new vegetable discovery.

MRS. SUSAN STRONG.

"In spite of everything I did to overcome awful stomach troubles of 25 years, I only kept getting worse," she continues. "Gases affected my heart and shut off my breath until I would sometimes just faint away. Was subject to dizziness, also and about 5 years ago began to have rheumatism in seemingly all my joints. My ankles swelled, limbs would draw and cramp and awful knots that formed on my limbs were as large as marbles. But now I want to say, after spending hundreds of dollars, I never had any medicine to do for me what Gly-Cas has. It's wonderful the way it has ended my terrible gas formations. I'm not dizzy anymore, the awful rheumatism knots are actually gone and there isn't a bit of the former cramping rheumatic misery in my limbs. Gly-Cas just proved the medicine I had needed for years and has done nothing short of wonders for me."

Gly-Cas is sold in Dixon at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy, Sold Franklin Grove, G. S. Ives; Polo, C. R. Clothier; Ashton, G. R. Charters; Amboy, Aschenbrenner Drug; Compton, W. H. Hills; Rochelle, Barker & Sullivan and by leading druggists in all surrounding towns.—Adv.

THIS HAS HAPPENED

RONNIE DUNDEE, "uh" detective, a u. d. c. LIEUTENANT STRAWN of the homicide squad of Hamilton, rents a room at Mrs. Rhodes' boarding house to be near Mrs. EMMA HOGARTH, who has applied to the police for protection. Dundee meets other boarders: MR. and MRS. SHARP, PAIRY SHEPHERD, saleswoman; WALTER STYLES, proprietor of a small haberdashery; NORMA FAIR, his daughter; RICHIE MANNIS, an amateur scenario writer; CORA BARKER, theater pianist; HENRY DOWD, newcomer out of work; and DUSTY RHODES, worthless husband of Mrs. Rhodes. Dundee learns that Mrs. Hogarth constantly changes her will to name a new favorite. Norma the latest favorite, introduces Dundee to Mrs. Hogarth after dinner but he gets only a few minutes chat with her alone. He leaves at 11, promising to return later. He comes back at 12:30 to find her choked to death.

Strawn takes charge of the investigation. Dundee, stationed behind a screen in the murder room, takes notes as Strawn quizzes Dand. A detective reports that SEVIER, former boarder, left town on the one o'clock train, that he ran to catch his train and was hatless. A DR. WEEKS reports having seen a man running down the alley as he went for his car about 12:10 to make a call.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER IX

"YES, I watched him until he disappeared," Dr. Weeks answered. "As soon as the car had backed out of the alley, the man straightened up, and ran faster than ever out of the alley into Tenth street."

"In the direction the car had taken?" Strawn asked. Perhaps that car, turning briefly into the alley and flashing its headlights had been a prearranged signal—

"No. The opposite direction—toward Maple avenue, the street just north of Chestnut, you know. The car turned toward Chestnut."

"Could you distinguish the make of the car or its occupants?"

"No—neither. In fact, I paid no attention to the car. I was watching the man. If I had had my wits about me and had not been in such a hurry to make my call—a pretty sick patient, by the way—I suppose I should have challenged the man, or reported the matter to the police. Or if I had known the man to be a former boarder, an evicted one, I should, of course, have notified Mrs. Rhodes of his strange behavior. I have a high regard for Mrs. Rhodes."

"I'm sure you have, doctor," Strawn interrupted. "And thank you very much. You've helped us a great deal. You'll be needed for the inquest, of course. . . . By the way, doctor, you say you attended Mrs. Hogarth occasionally during the last three or four years. In your opinion, was she—well, mentally normal?"

The doctor chuckled, then remembered he was in a room where murder had been committed a very short time before, and looked embarrassed. "One of the shrewdest women I've ever met, Lieutenant Strawn. And the most close-mouthed. A queer woman, but not a crazy woman. I'm sure of that, Lieutenant Strawn."

When the doctor left the room, Strawn spoke briefly to Caraway, the fingerprint expert, who was packing his paraphernalia preparatory to leaving.

"Afraid this bunch of prints I've picked up won't help you much, Strawn," Caraway answered. "The murderer was a wise guy—used gloves, or a handkerchief. No prints at all on the window frame; wiped clean. And none on the trunk lock or the desk drawers. The chamber maid must have dusted in here with an oiled rag some time Saturday, for the desk was clean even of the old lady's fingerprints—except the top of it. I took her fingerprints first thing, and they match with those found on the desk. No prints on the keys, either."

When Caraway had left, Strawn joined Dundee behind the screen. "Well, boy, I'm afraid this case is going to be too simple for your tastes," the older detective commented on our suspicions of Sevier, but told them to soft-pedal it; just say that Sevier was wanted for questioning. They ate up the doctor's story of the running man and the car, and are going to ask the driver of the car to come forward, like a good citizen, and tell anything he knows. . . . Say, young feller, me lad, what are you grinning about?" he broke off to demand half angrily.

"I was just thinking," Dundee confessed, his eyes twinkling, "how in my ignorance and inexperience I should have gone about this case."

The careful wording did not deceive Strawn. He flushed, then shrugged. "All right! Split it! How would you have gone about this case?"

"I'm afraid I should have made an awful lot of work for myself and the police department," Dundee admitted, ruefully. "I should have begun on the supposition that any one who lived in this house, or who had ever lived in it, or had even taken a meal in it, and had heard the story of a miser with a hidden board in his room, was a possible suspect. Greed, you know, is such a universal passion. I believe it is responsible for more crimes than any other motive, isn't it?"

"Well?" Strawn snorted. "Of course, I realize that things look bad for Sevier—provided any Cora Barker, escorted by the patrolman, appeared in the doorway.

Rhodes is holding some reporters at bay downstairs now."

"Once the screens were in, however, the raising of one of the screens might have attracted attention. . . . By the way, I said all the roomers on this floor, because those having rooms on the west side of the house, which has no porch, could gain access to the roof merely by walking across the hall, which is T-shaped, you know, with a window opening directly upon the porch. Naturally a roomer on the third floor could have crept down the stairs to this hall, stepped over the hall window sill, sneaked past Cora Barker's room and on to Mrs. Hogarth's on the front porch. In fact, this house, without screens, is an ideally constructed place, from a robber's viewpoint. If he doesn't care to board here, he can climb the rose trellis on the west end of the front porch, saunter along that porch and

BURNS PROVE FATAL
Springfield, Ill., Nov. 2.—(AP)—
Burns suffered when flames leaped out from a stove in which she was kindling a fire caused the death of Mrs. Ada Baker, 42 years old, a farmer's wife living north of here, early this morning. Mrs. Baker was using kerosene to start the fire yesterday afternoon.
Her clothes were ignited by the flames shooting from the stove. Efforts of a young son, Bernard, 13 years old, to beat out the flames were futile. She was brought to a hospital here where she died early this morning.
William Baker, the woman's husband, and two children survive.

Duncan, president of the LaSalle
State Bank, died today in a hospital at Appleton, Wis., where she had undergone an operation. She was widely known in central Illinois.
